Introduction

Real Medicine Foundation’s Panyadoli Vocational Training Institute (PVTI) is registered with the Directorate of Industrial Training (DIT) in Nakawa, Uganda. This gives all of PVTI’s students the opportunity to be registered, assessed, and provided with certificates which facilitate further studies and employment at reputable businesses.

Assessment Exercise

The DIT assessment exercise at Panyadoli Vocational Training Institute started with a meeting at 8:30 AM, where all students gathered and were addressed on the major values and rules that govern DIT assessment. This was followed by a question and answer session for students, to ensure understanding of how the exercise is conducted. A roll call was taken so that PVTI instructors and DIT representatives could identify missing or absent students. The assessment exercise began in all departments at 9:00 AM, when students were given materials to start their work.

Bricklaying and Concrete Practice (BCP)

Bricklaying and Concrete Practice is a newer department at Panyadoli Vocational Training Institute, created with the help of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) South Sudan. 14 BCP students were registered for this DIT assessment exercise, and all of them (100%) attended and completed the exam. 2 of the BCP trainees are women, which greatly impressed the DIT representatives, since in South Sudan such work is typically only for men. DIT representatives noted that the department's space is still limited, and there is need to expand on it so that students can have enough space to properly complete practical work.

Bricklaying and Concrete Practice (BCP) students were assessed on the English bond with a stretcher T-junction.

Conclusion

The Directorate of Industrial Training (DIT) assessment exercise was completed successfully at Panyadoli Vocational Training Institute (PVTI). All PVTI students were able to complete and submit their work on time. For some departments, the exercise was done in intervals, as the assessment time was longer and continued after lunch. A total of 74 students were assessed, and there was not one registered student who missed the exercise per the roll call and DIT registration.
